

How much could you manage?

apetito is one of the fastest growing food companies in the UK. A respected specialist in its field, it provides highly nutritional frozen meals to markets such as hospitals, home delivery and community meals, as well as foodservice users such as pubs and independent caterers. The apetito group employs 6200 people and provides innovative solutions for the European institutional and contract catering markets. The UK operation employs 1400 people across 4 main sites and since 1996, when it entered the UK market, sales revenues have trebled to around £70 million with double-digit growth of both sales and profits in the last few years. apetito has recently won awards for sustainable growth and contribution to the regional economy.

Culturally apetito is open, informal, quality-focused and driven to succeed in all that it does and now seeks two committed individuals who share this philosophy. The company continues to invest heavily in all disciplines, including a multimillion pound change plan for its main manufacturing site; through this change project, as well as in day to day interventions, there is considerable opportunity for creative and business minded HR practitioners to make a significant impact.

TRAINING MANAGER

TO £40K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

apetito has markedly increased its investment in training with some notable successes, and we're now looking for a Training Manager to build on the existing strategy and manage the ongoing development of training across the business. You will have two distinct populations to consider; manufacturing/distribution teams based across 4 large sites, and around 25 meals on wheels delivery teams located around the South. You'll personally design and deliver a range of training across all business units, as well as managing the training infrastructure and providing development support to management teams. With a passion for training excellence, you'll be keen to ensure training is distinctive, high quality, and effective.

Applicants should be accomplished training professionals who can demonstrate strong prioritisation and delivery skills ideally gained within the hospitality and leisure, retail or other service industries. Experience of managing a budget, sourcing funded training, psychometric qualifications and evaluation of training interventions will also be favoured. Essentially, you will have a desire to make your mark and to ensure learning and development is a fun and mutually beneficial experience for all the stakeholders.

HR MANAGER

C. £35K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

As the HR Manager for apetito's highest profile manufacturing site in Trowbridge, you will need to build strong relationships with the manufacturing manager and his 400-strong team as they embark on a significant program of change to prepare for future growth. Essentially, you will provide support and direction on organisational development issues such as restructuring, building capability and performance management. In addition you will manage 'day to day' HR activities such as resourcing and employee relations alongside providing some HR support to the corporate functions, also based at Trowbridge.

This role requires a CIPD qualified generalist with c. 5 years' experience. Your experience will ideally be within a fast-paced labour intensive industrial business where you use your commercial acumen, interpersonal skills and credibility to build relationships. You will bring enthusiasm and a can-do approach to your sound employee relations exposure and creative recruitment skills.

For more detailed information about apetito and the roles above, please visit www.purplehousehr.com/apetito.html or contact our retained consultant, Lindsey Newman, Purple House Recruitment Ltd. email: adresponse@purplehousehr.com Tel: 0117 906 3424.

apetito

How big is your appetite?

apetito is one of the fastest growing food companies in the UK. A respected specialist in its field, it provides highly nutritional frozen meals to markets such as hospitals, home delivery and community meals, as well as foodservice users such as pubs and independent caterers. The apetito group employs 6200 people and provides innovative solutions for the European institutional and contract catering markets. The UK operation employs 1400 people across 4 main sites and since 1996, when it entered the UK market, sales revenues have trebled to around £70 million with double-digit growth of both sales and profits in the last few years. apetito has recently won awards for sustainable growth and contribution to the regional economy.

Culturally apetito is open, informal, quality-focused and driven to succeed in all that it does and now seeks two committed individuals who share this philosophy. The company continues to invest heavily in all disciplines, including a multimillion pound change plan for its main manufacturing site; through this change project, as well as in day to day interventions, there is considerable opportunity for creative and business minded HR practitioners to make a significant impact.

TRAINING MANAGER

TO £40K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

apetito has markedly increased its investment in training with some notable successes, and we're now looking for a Training Manager to build on the existing strategy and manage the ongoing development of training across the business. You will have two distinct populations to consider; manufacturing/distribution teams based across 4 large sites, and around 25 meals on wheels delivery teams located around the South. You'll personally design and deliver a range of training across all business units, as well as managing the training infrastructure and providing development support to management teams. With a passion for training excellence, you'll be keen to ensure training is distinctive, high quality, and effective.

Applicants should be accomplished training professionals who can demonstrate strong prioritisation and delivery skills ideally gained within the hospitality and leisure, retail or other service industries. Experience of managing a budget, sourcing funded training, psychometric qualifications and evaluation of training interventions will also be favoured. Essentially, you will have a desire to make your mark and to ensure learning and development is a fun and mutually beneficial experience for all the stakeholders.

HR MANAGER

C. £35K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

As the HR Manager for apetito's highest profile manufacturing site in Trowbridge, you will need to build strong relationships with the manufacturing manager and his 400-strong team as they embark on a significant program of change to prepare for future growth. Essentially, you will provide support and direction on organisational development issues such as restructuring, building capability and performance management. In addition you will manage 'day to day' HR activities such as resourcing and employee relations alongside providing some HR support to the corporate functions, also based at Trowbridge.

This role requires a CIPD qualified generalist with c. 5 years' experience. Your experience will ideally be within a fast-paced labour intensive industrial business where you use your commercial acumen, interpersonal skills and credibility to build relationships. You will bring enthusiasm and a can-do approach to your sound employee relations exposure and creative recruitment skills.

For more detailed information about apetito and the roles above, please visit www.purplehousehr.com/apetito.html or contact our retained Consultant, Lindsey Newman, Purple House Recruitment Ltd. email: adresponse@purplehousehr.com Tel: 0117 906 3424.

apetito

Keep our strength up

apetito is one of the fastest growing food companies in the UK. A respected specialist in its field, it provides highly nutritional frozen meals to markets such as hospitals, home delivery and community meals, as well as foodservice users such as pubs and independent caterers. The apetito group employs 6200 people and provides innovative solutions for the European institutional and contract catering markets. The UK operation employs 1400 people across 4 main sites and since 1996, when it entered the UK market, sales revenues have trebled to around £70 million with double-digit growth of both sales and profits in the last few years. apetito has recently won awards for sustainable growth and contribution to the regional economy.

Culturally apetito is open, informal, quality-focused and driven to succeed in all that it does and now seeks two committed individuals who share this philosophy. The company continues to invest heavily in all disciplines, including a multimillion pound change plan for its main manufacturing site; through this change project, as well as in day to day interventions, there is considerable opportunity for creative and business minded HR practitioners to make a significant impact.

TRAINING MANAGER

TO £40K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

apetito has markedly increased its investment in training with some notable successes, and we're now looking for a Training Manager to build on the existing strategy and manage the ongoing development of training across the business. You will have two distinct populations to consider; manufacturing/distribution teams based across 4 large sites, and around 25 meals on wheels delivery teams located around the South. You'll personally design and deliver a range of training across all business units, as well as managing the training infrastructure and providing development support to management teams. With a passion for training excellence, you'll be keen to ensure training is distinctive, high quality, and effective.

Applicants should be accomplished training professionals who can demonstrate strong prioritisation and delivery skills ideally gained within the hospitality and leisure, retail or other service industries. Experience of managing a budget, sourcing funded training, psychometric qualifications and evaluation of training interventions will also be favoured. Essentially, you will have a desire to make your mark and to ensure learning and development is a fun and mutually beneficial experience for all the stakeholders.

HR MANAGER

C. £35K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

As the HR Manager for apetito's highest profile manufacturing site in Trowbridge, you will need to build strong relationships with the manufacturing manager and his 400-strong team as they embark on a significant program of change to prepare for future growth. Essentially, you will provide support and direction on organisational development issues such as restructuring, building capability and performance management. In addition you will manage 'day to day' HR activities such as resourcing and employee relations alongside providing some HR support to the corporate functions, also based at Trowbridge.

This role requires a CIPD qualified generalist with c. 5 years' experience. Your experience will ideally be within a fast-paced labour intensive industrial business where you use your commercial acumen, interpersonal skills and credibility to build relationships. You will bring enthusiasm and a can-do approach to your sound employee relations exposure and creative recruitment skills.

For more detailed information about apetito and the roles above, please visit www.purplehousehr.com/apetito.html or contact our retained Consultant, Lindsey Newman, Purple House Recruitment Ltd. email: adresponse@purplehousehr.com Tel: 0117 906 3424.

apetito

The sweet smell of success

apetito is one of the fastest growing food companies in the UK. A respected specialist in its field, it provides highly nutritional frozen meals to markets such as hospitals, home delivery and community meals, as well as foodservice users such as pubs and independent caterers. The apetito group employs 6200 people and provides innovative solutions for the European institutional and contract catering markets. The UK operation employs 1400 people across 4 main sites and since 1996, when it entered the UK market, sales revenues have trebled to around £70 million with double-digit growth of both sales and profits in the last few years. apetito has recently won awards for sustainable growth and contribution to the regional economy.

Culturally apetito is open, informal, quality-focused and driven to succeed in all that it does and now seeks two committed individuals who share this philosophy. The company continues to invest heavily in all disciplines, including a multimillion pound change plan for its main manufacturing site; through this change project, as well as in day to day interventions, there is considerable opportunity for creative and business minded HR practitioners to make a significant impact.

TRAINING MANAGER

TO £40K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

apetito has markedly increased its investment in training with some notable successes, and we're now looking for a Training Manager to build on the existing strategy and manage the ongoing development of training across the business. You will have two distinct populations to consider; manufacturing/distribution teams based across 4 large sites, and around 25 meals on wheels delivery teams located around the South. You'll personally design and deliver a range of training across all business units, as well as managing the training infrastructure and providing development support to management teams. With a passion for training excellence, you'll be keen to ensure training is distinctive, high quality, and effective.

Applicants should be accomplished training professionals who can demonstrate strong prioritisation and delivery skills ideally gained within the hospitality and leisure, retail or other service industries. Experience of managing a budget, sourcing funded training, psychometric qualifications and evaluation of training interventions will also be favoured. Essentially, you will have a desire to make your mark and to ensure learning and development is a fun and mutually beneficial experience for all the stakeholders.

HR MANAGER

C. £35K + BONUS + BENEFITS – BASED NEAR BATH

As the HR Manager for apetito's highest profile manufacturing site in Trowbridge, you will need to build strong relationships with the manufacturing manager and his 400-strong team as they embark on a significant program of change to prepare for future growth. Essentially, you will provide support and direction on organisational development issues such as restructuring, building capability and performance management. In addition you will manage 'day to day' HR activities such as resourcing and employee relations alongside providing some HR support to the corporate functions, also based at Trowbridge.

This role requires a CIPD qualified generalist with c. 5 years' experience. Your experience will ideally be within a fast-paced labour intensive industrial business where you use your commercial acumen, interpersonal skills and credibility to build relationships. You will bring enthusiasm and a can-do approach to your sound employee relations exposure and creative recruitment skills.

For more detailed information about apetito and the roles above, please visit www.purplehousehr.com/apetito.html or contact our retained Consultant, Lindsey Newman, Purple House Recruitment Ltd.

Email: adresponse@purplehousehr.com

Tel: 0117 906 3424.

apetito

